FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Ross Terry, President announces that TEACO, Inc. recently earned certification to ISO 9001:2000.

TEACO has passed a rigorous audit certifying the organization operates its business as to the requirements of the ISO 9001:2000 Quality Management Certification System. The foundation of the certification defines, identifies, and confirms quality benchmarks within the TEACO organization in order to meet the anticipated needs of its customers with improved processes. Certification was awarded by Third Party Registrar, Perry Johnson Registrars, Inc.

TEACO is an electro-mechanical assembly subcontracting company serving the industrial control industry. TEACO contracts with primarily local companies such as Custom Machining Services, I/N Kote, Sprague Devices, Sullair, Vanair, Thermco Instruments, and Ploog Engineering Co., Inc.

The firm's Quality Policy states, "TEACO will strive to meet all requirements and expectations, including ISO 9001:2000 and any statutory or regulatory requirements when applicable. A high level of quality will be maintained and enhanced through continuous improvement of procedures and established quality objectives."

TEACO was established in 1976 by Ross and Margaret Terry and is located at 2117 Ohio Street in Michigan City, Indiana. While the business and number of people have grown, TEACO is still a small company employing twelve to fifteen employees in a 8,240 square foot facility with the same mission. Since inception, the primary focus has been to combine overall service with the highest level of responsiveness for its customers. TEACO stresses "Excellence from the Start."
